GENERAL COMMENTS

U.S. DDGS prices rose another $20/MT this week as grain and feedstuff markets continue their respective rallies. The conflict in Ukraine continues to support grain values, which are near all-time highs, while buyers validate asking prices as few inexpensive feedstuff options remain. The Kansas City soymeal/DDGS ratio was steady at 0.52 this week and above the three-year average of 0.47. The DDGS/cash corn ratio is higher at 1.06 this week, up from 0.97 last week and equal to its three-year average.

Higher crude oil and energy values are once again pushing the delivered DDGS market higher. Energy costs are supporting interior truck values and railroad fuel surcharges and rail-delivered DDGS are up $20-34/MT from last week.

Barge CIF NOLA DDGS prices are up $60-65/MT this week and FOB Gulf offers are equally higher, averaging $411/MT for April. As was the case last week, there are a wide range of indications in the market and Thursday's indications hold a premium to early week offers.

Containerized DDGS to Southeast Asia are still trading slowly amid large increases in DDGS prices and ocean freight values. Offers up $3/4MT this week, with the average Q2 price for 40-foot containers to Southeast Asia reaching $451/MT.

OCEAN FREIGHT MARKET

Freight and commodity markets still have a lot to digest and resolve. War in the Black Sea region is the common, and biggest, issue driving markets. The large jump in crude oil, and therefore in fuel prices, has significantly elevated freight cost and is going to keep transportation costs relatively high for weeks and months to come. This week, dry-bulk ocean freight is acting like last week's CBOT May wheat futures contract – going straight up in the air. It is probably moving up too much too fast for the moment?

While volatility remains, one constant is that the wild price swings are occurring at higher levels than just two months ago. The net result is simply higher values and serious challenges for buyers of commodities and freight.

On the bright side, due to increased dredging, vessel drafts in the port of New Orleans have been increased to 48-49 feet (14.6-14.9 meters). This will allow for 2,000-5,000 additional MT of grain to be loaded on outbound ships where desired.

Container markets continue to show some improvement, meaning slightly lower rates and improvements in logistics. There is still the risk of a global economic downturn. Source: O'Neil Commodity Consulting
