GENERAL COMMENTS

DDGS prices are continuing last week's trend and are down $9.25/MT FOB ethanol plant through Thursday's market close. Quiet end-user demand following the aggressive purchase pace earlier this year, combined with weaker soymeal values, has pressured the market. Additionally, supplies are increasing as plants exit the seasonal spring maintenance shutdown season.

The DDGS/Kansas City soymeal ratio at 0.67, up from last week's 0.61 and above the three-year average of 0.48. The DDGS/cash corn ratio is at 1.05 this week, up from 0.97 last week and below the three-year average of 1.06.

On the export market, brokers and exporters report that Barge CIF NOLA values are down $15/MT for June through August shipments in a continuation of last week's weaker trend. FOB Gulf offers are down $9-10/MT as that market is finding better support and steady buyer inquiries. Container offers are down $20/MT this week as lower domestic prices offset slight gains in ocean freight. The average offer for 40-foot containers to Southeast Asia is $422/MT for June-August shipment.

OCEAN FREIGHT MARKET

Even with Chinese bulk imports down by 9 percent YTD, this week's uptick in Chinese iron ore demand caused excitement in global Capesize markets and they rallied higher. The rally prompted other vessel markets to decide to go along for the ride. Overall, global cargo demand for dry-bulk commodities does not look robust going forward. Traders have reason for hope that rates can climb higher in 2022, however, as Chinese port congestion and poor logistics are creating slow turn times. The small 2022-2023 new vessel order book for dry-bulk ships provides additional support for such thinking. Container markets are, of course, dealing with the same Chinese port congestion issues and difficult logistics. When Chinese ports fully reopen from lock down requirements, a big wave of imports will hit U.S and E.U. container ports. Source: O'Neil Commodity Consulting
